March 29–May 16, 2011

Opening Reception: Wednesday, March 30, 2011, 6:00–8:00 p.m.
Gallery talk by the artist at 7:00 p.m.

One of the oldest art forms, storytelling is both collective and transitory. It encompasses everything from rumors, odes, gossip, and lessons for children, to stories told around the fireside. In oral tradition, the life of a story undergoes multiple adaptations, and, with technology constantly changing and reinventing the way we communicate and share with one another, that volume of traditional storytelling

Bridget Murphy Milligan's fireside tales is a collection of traditional portrayals that examine and preserve the tradition of Irish storytelling through the language of photography. Together the images recreate popular stories of faith, mystery, myth, humor, history, and fairy legends.

Bridget Murphy Milligan is a graduate of the College of Wooster.
